Funeral Advice You Can Trust

Most people know more about how to buy a car or a major appliance than a funeral, and few do any research or shop around.

In addition, most people purchase funeral goods and services when they are stressed and grieving after a death, making them uniquely vulnerable consumers.

To compound the problem, the only place most people know to go for advice is the funeral home. And, while most funeral directors are compassionate, caring people, they are also salespeople running for-profit businesses.

We Can Help

The Funeral Consumers Alliance of Princeton is a volunteer-run, not-for-profit organization that is not associated with the funeral industry. We provide objective support, education and advocacy. We offer tools to empower you to make informed, thoughtful decisions about funeral and memorial arrangements before you need them. We advocate for consumer-friendly legislation and speak up on behalf of grieving families. We are the only organization that stands up for your rights during a difficult and potentially expensive time.

Did You Know?

- ☞ The average cost of a funeral is over $7,000 and that doesn't include the price of a plot, cemetery fees, headstone, obituaries, etc.
- ☞ There are more than 600 funeral homes in NJ, but fewer than 300 are needed to support the death rate.
- ☞ Since few people comparison shop, most don't know that funeral home prices vary greatly, even in the same town. In central NJ, funeral home charges for direct cremation range from $405 to $4,865!
- ☞ If you go to a funeral home the funeral director is required by law to give you a General Price List (GPL) that itemizes the costs of all goods and services.
- ☞ If you don't want a viewing or a service in a funeral home, you don't have to a nearby funeral home. That can save you hundreds to thousands of dollars.
- ☞ Embalming is an expensive, invasive procedure that is rarely required by law. In most cases, refrigeration is an alternative.
- ☞ You can keep a body at home for up to 48 hours after death, giving family and friends a chance to say goodbye in a comfortable, personal place.
- ☞ You can buy a casket online at a deep discount, and the funeral home receiving it cannot charge you a handling or other fee.
